Dear Court Public Information Officer:

After meeting together “informally” for a decade, The Conference of Court Public Information Officers was formally established in November 2000 as a 501(c)(3) not-for-profit corporation. CCPIO members increase their effectiveness through unparalleled opportunities to interact with one another on several levels. True to its aim, the CCPIO has since evolved into an association of peers who share resources, exchange information, and benefit from the CCPIO’s opportunities for professional development.

ACCESS RESOURCES AND PRACTICAL ASSISTANCE.

Members are afforded the unique opportunity to participate in an exclusive Internet listserv where problems and solutions are exchanged among members, often on a daily basis. In addition, the CCPIO’s state-of-the-art website offers access to valuable resources – including various court communications plans, scholarly articles, salary surveys and information on meetings and other professional events. An affiliate of the National Center for State Courts, CCPIO members have the National Center’s many resources at their disposal, as well. CCPIO also partners with the Reynolds Center for Courts and Media of the National Judicial College to present educational programs for PIOs and others interested in court communications.

NETWORK WITH COURT PUBLIC RELATIONS PROFESSIONALS FROM AROUND THE WORLD.

The CCPIO boasts a varied membership, with communication professionals as members from nearly 40 American states and the District of Columbia and several other countries. This diverse membership provides the right forum for beneficial interaction, fostering professional development.
